Community Health Webinar Series

Health Effects of Climate Change

The Climate Crisis is a Health Crisis

The health effects of the climate crisis are already upon us – from lung disease triggered by wildfires to deadly heatwaves to surges of infectious diseases.

Evidence is mounting that biodiversity loss and changes in temperature and precipitation affect malnutrition, infectious and chronic diseases, and mental health, and lead to injuries and premature death.

In this presentation, our specialists will discuss immediate and long-term causes and effects on health, and what we must do in our local and global communities to control, respond, treat, adapt and mitigate.

We'll have time for Q&A at the end of the presentation.

Featured Speakers:

Lisa Santora, MD

Deputy Health Officer, Marin Dept of Human Services

Christian Tubbs

Fire Chief, Southern Marin Fire District
